A photograph taken at night showing a remote-controlled car with a smiling face. The car is white with a black front and has large, expressive eyes and a wide, toothy grin. It is positioned in front of a sign that reads "WHEELING METRA STATION". A man in a dark uniform is standing to the right, holding a remote control device. In the background, there are large stone columns and a yellow balloon with a black symbol. A young boy in a white cap and another person are visible on the left side of the frame.
